MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director, Intelligence

SUBJECT: Collection of Intelligence Materials from Overt Sources Overseas

REFERENCE: Memo, AD/CD to DDI, dated 19 February 1953, subject as above

1. The State Department's Publications Procurement Program overseas is in process of dissolution. Moscow has been without a PPO since May, 1952 (see Tab A). The PPO formerly stationed in Rome is now being withdrawn (see Tab B). In addition, I am informed that the PPO in Berlin has now been instructed to cease procurement from the SovZone due to the personal danger involved in crossing the barrier.

2. It is essential that action be taken at once to find an alternative means of obtaining publications from overseas. Reference proposed that DDI personnel, responsible to Senior Representatives overseas, be sent abroad to undertake procurement. This proposal was approved in principle by all your AD's except AD/IC, who felt that it might be preferable for CIA to integrate some of its own personnel into the State program.

3. Referenced memo, and the discussion surrounding it, have now been overtaken by events. It is my belief that we should now seriously consider whether or not CIA should undertake entire support of the Publications Procurement Program under an arrangement similar to that now in effect for procurement of geographic materials. Such an arrangement would imply:

a. That one of your officers be made to wear two hats - serving as State Department's Director of Publications Procurement in addition to his other duties.

b. That Publications Procurement Officers be paid and designated by CIA for assignment overseas [REDACTED] 25X1C4a

c. That the PPO's operate under instructions to be supplied by 3 a above.

d. That provision be made for the use of unvouchered funds in publication procurement in those areas and under those circumstances which require the use of such funds for effective results.

e. That all publications procured by the Program be delivered direct to CIA for processing and dissemination.

4. It is recommended that you approve in principle the above suggested program, and that discussions with State be commenced at once in order to ascertain the amount of budgetary support which would be needed to put the program into effect.

5. Due to the delays which have taken place in our earlier efforts to find a solution to this problem, and due to the current pressure of events, copies of this memo are being delivered to your other AD's for their information rather than being submitted to them for their concurrence.

The Department is currently in a position to clear might consider appointment to the Moscow post in the Library if it were offered to him. From the point of view of the Library of Congress, the appointment would be very desirable.

The Library would very much appreciate the Department's early attention. Attn: Mr. Theodore M. Nordbeck and I would be very happy to meet Acting Director upon his visit to the Department in the Office of Libraries and Intelligence Acquisitions
approximately 10-15-53.

Sir:

On February 18, 1953, the Chief Assistant Librarian of Congress in a telephone conversation with Mr. Theodore M. Nordbeck of the State Department expressed his great concern over the extraordinary delay in the appointment of a Publications Procurement Officer to the American Embassy in Moscow. I concur in that expression of concern.

It is of the utmost importance to strategic research in this country that there be available at the post in Moscow a full time Publications Procurement Officer who can regain and continue the coverage of Soviet issuances which was effective prior to the return of Mr. Charles McLane from that post last May.

The urgency of this appointment is redoubled now that the East Berlin sources of Soviet publications have been cut off.

I am aware of the Department's unsuccessful attempts to clear Mr. David G. Munford for the Moscow post and I realize that temporary arrangements for continuing procurement in Moscow were undertaken. Unfortunately, in terms of numbers of pieces the latter have resulted in not more than one third of the receipts formerly supplied.

I understand informally that Mr. Charles McLane might consider returning to his former position at the Embassy if it were offered to him. From the point of view of the Library of Congress, his reappointment would be very desirable.

The Library cannot urge too strongly the Department's early attention to this procurement problem and I shall be very happy to cooperate in any way open to me to aid the Department in the problem's solution.

Sincerely yours,

Luther H. Evans
Librarian of Congress

The Honorable
The Secretary of State
Washington 25, D. C.
